About the English Section

The English Section of the Department of Basic Sciences and Humanities (BS&H) has been pivotal in shaping the professional students into employable graduates by equipping them with requisite communication skills in English.

The English faculty of Sri Vasavi that includes 4 Doctorates and highly experienced teachers, caters to the diverse academic and professional needs of the technical students. A computer-aided English Communication Skills Lab is a quality addition to the department which offers the complete audio-visual workout to hone the LSRW Skills of the students.

About the Program

The FDP is basically designed to brush up the communicative abilities of the faculty to use English in numerous contexts of profession and life. This is the "Third One" in the series of programmes planned. It is more interactive than instructive in nature. The key components of the program:

- Portraying yourself and your work in a smart way
- Finding the right words at right places
- Avoiding common errors in day-to-day speech and writing
- Embellishing your talk with pleasantries, linkers / connectors, determiners, modifiers and collocations
- Drawing upon enriching sources and resources
- Watching and responding to video clips
- Group Discussion

At the end of the morning session every day, tasks are given to the participants to work on in the afternoon.

Outcomes

After their participation in the FDP, the faculty will be able to:

- Communicate more fluently in English without common errors in speech and with considerable accuracy in usage.
- Deliver well in classroom settings and other professional contexts.
- Draw upon a wide range of resources for inputs and learning.

★ Number of participants in this FDP is restricted to 25 to ensure individual focus.
